"We're very pleased to welcome Jack to MG Commercial," said Leeds Mitchell IV, Principal Broker and Partner at MG Commercial. "He is bright, motivated and has the type of work ethic and team-first attitude that we value. His Rhode Island roots, education, and competitive background make him a strong addition to our firm, and we look forward to helping him build a successful career in commercial real estate."

Born and raised in Rhode Island, Cordischi attended Providence Country Day School before earning a bachelor's degree in Business Economics and a Certificate in Entrepreneurship from Brown University. His academic background provided him with a strong foundation in market analysis, finance, business strategy, and entrepreneurial thinking.

While at Brown, Cordischi served for four years as Head Student Manager of the university's men's basketball team. The position required leadership, organization, attention to detail, and the ability to perform in a demanding, team-oriented environment—qualities he will bring to his work with MG Commercial and its clients.

"I'm excited to begin my commercial real estate career with MG Commercial and to learn from a team with such deep experience in the local market," Cordischi said. "Growing up in Rhode Island makes this opportunity especial meaningful, and I look forward to working with businesses, property owners investors, and tenants throughout the region.”
